- (54) Industrialized method for extracting Lutein and Quercetagenin from marigold.
- (57) Disclosed is an industrialized method for extracting lutein and quercetagenin from marigold particles. The method comprises the following steps: 1) extracting the marigold particles with an acetone solution having a volume fraction of 90% to 99% so as to obtain an extract; and 2) concentrating the extract to achieve a solid content of 60% to 95%, and subjecting the resulting concentrate to the extraction with a low-polarity solvent so as to obtain a quercetagenin product and a lutein product. For marigold particles, the present invention selects acetone as an extractant, which can simultaneously extract lutein and quercetagenin, and the yield of the two products can be increased by strictly controlling the 10 concentration of acetone. In addition, by controlling the degree of concentration, the two effective ingredients can be efficiently separated, affording high yields of quercetagenin and lutein with high purity.
